LAS VEGAS (June 13, 2016) – The High Roller will soon offer an “elevated journey,” when it launches yoga sessions on International Yoga Day— Tuesday, June 21. Rising 550 feet in the air, the world’s tallest observation wheel allows guests the only chance in Las Vegas to find their Om and enjoy the breathtaking views of Las Vegas.

The experience includes a one-hour yoga session (two rotations) with an instructor from Silent Savasana and up to six guests per cabin. Guests will be guided through the experience by wearing a headset that allows them to hear the instructor and music. This technique allows riders to have a more individualized, soothing and focused session while taking in sweeping views of the Las Vegas Strip and skyline.

Guests are welcomed to bring their own mat or borrow a mat that’s been provided by lululemon athletica™ at Fashion Show Mall. They’ll also receive a High Roller branded water bottle that’s perfect for workouts on the go.

"This is truly a first-of-its-kind experience for Las Vegas," says Bob Morse, president of hospitality, Caesars Entertainment. "The LINQ Promenade was the first to create an outdoor venue that featured shopping, retail and entertainment all in one place. After much success, we have found a new opportunity to take the High Roller experience to the next level for our visitors.

Guests must book at least 24 hours in advance to reserve their experience. Upon arrival, they will check-in at the Charter Groups Entrance of the High Roller, where they’ll be greeted by their yoga instructor(s). From there, they will board the cabin, be placed into position by the instructor(s) and then the yoga journey will begin.

The sessions will be available seven days per week from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. for $75 per person.* A premium sunset option will be available Monday through Wednesday at $85 per person and the time will fluctuate seasonally with the setting sun. Private, one-on-one yoga sessions are available at $250 per person or $300 for a couple. Five sessions can be purchased for $325 per person. Each experience includes a one-hour yoga session (two rotations), one complimentary High Roller reusable water bottle and the use of a yoga mat.
