

Caesars Entertainment Is First To Return With Live Entertainment On The Las Vegas Strip

ABSINTHE at Caesars Palace, Piff the Magic Dragon at Flamingo and Tape Face and X Country at Harrah's first to resume performances with more to be announced

Showrooms and lounges will implement Caesars Entertainment's health and safety protocols and follow applicable government directives

LAS VEGAS, Oct. 22, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Caesars Entertainment (NASDAQ: CZR), the largest gaming and entertainment company in the U.S., is pleased to once again offer live entertainment with the return of a selection of its world-class productions shows on the Las Vegas Strip. As Caesars Entertainment will follow applicable guidelines set forth by health and government authorities and implement the Company's enhanced health and safety protocols, guests can expect verbal health screenings, non-contact temperature checks, modified seating for social distancing, mandatory masks for guests and staff, limited capacity and more. The following shows' performances will resume:

- X Country at Harrah's – first performance: Thursday, Oct. 22
- ABSINTHE at Caesars Palace – first performance: Wednesday, Oct. 28
- Piff the Magic Dragon at Flamingo – first performance: Thursday, Oct. 29
- Tape Face at Harrah's – first performance: Wednesday, Nov. 11

Additionally, guests can look forward to enjoying complimentary live musicians across the city in many Caesars Entertainment lounge/bar offerings.

"Live entertainment is an important part of the Las Vegas experience that makes visiting this city so special, and we are thrilled that we can be first to offer it to our guests again," said Jason Gastwirth, president of entertainment for Caesars Entertainment. "In collaboration with our entertainment partners and with the support of governing officials, we are happy to lead the city with an enhanced health and safety plan that will put our team members back to work and keep our guests comfortable while enjoying these popular shows once again."
